Video or Sound from 'A to Z' presentation?

Posted by Austin B - 03 Nov 2011 - 03:14

I really appreciate the great slides in the 'WinDbg From A to Z' presentation, but I couldn't help but wish to hear the narrative that would accompany them. I think it would be an outstanding tool for complete newbies like myself to get the most from your guide. Any chance a video or even a sound file of the presentation could be made available at some point?

==========

Re: Video or Sound from 'A to Z' presentation?

Posted by Robert Kuster - 03 Nov 2011 - 11:57

Austin, welcome.

Hm, that's an interesting suggestion indeed. I'll definitely think about it, though I first plan to add more written content to the site. Among others a step-by-step tutorial for the first steps with WinDbg that you will probably also find interesting and useful. But as said your idea is really interesting ...so let's see.

Stay tuned,
Robert

==========

Re: Video or Sound from 'A to Z' presentation?

Posted by Andrew Parsons - 21 May 2012 - 01:32

It would be useful if you could add a narative.

But I was also thinking that an article on the limits of a mini dump vs full memory dump might also be useful.

Cheers.

==========